

APPLICANT BJÖRK

APPLICANT NAME: Björk Guðmundsdóttir

POSITION SOUGHT: Manager

DEPARTMENT: Bolts and Fasteners

INTERVIEW NOTES:

Applicant Björk expressed interest in becoming manager of the Bolts and Fasteners department of the Home Depot, Glendale location. She described her previous employment as “multi-media performance artist and electronic music interpreter.” When asked why she was interested in a career with The Home Depot, Applicant Björk replied that multi-media performance art and electronic music interpretation were no longer “paying the bills the way they used to.”

When asked what special skills she could bring to the Home Depot family Applicant Björk responded with a series of howls and shrieks.

Pressed for further specificity, Applicant Björk suggested that perhaps the Bolts and Fasteners Department could benefit from a video in which her nipples secrete a red thread that eventually envelops her in a cocoon-like structure.

When asked how she would go about training new employees, Applicant Björk suggested a convoluted onboarding process involving a throat-singing Inuit choir.

When asked to view a random assemblage of fasteners and identify a Powertec Fence Flip Stop with 5/16 inch T-Bolt, Applicant Björk was unable to do so. When said Fence Flip Stop was pointed out to her, Applicant Björk remarked that it looked “like a deep sea creature” and that she wanted to re-create its underwater song using a hybrid string instrument of her own devising.

When asked if she had any questions about her possible employment, Applicant Björk asked if it was possible to eschew Home Depot’s trademark orange apron in favor of an insectoid kimono-like garment in order to better express the unifying power of the ocean.

Applicant Björk was informed that she would be notified via e-mail if selected for the position, and that no further contact with The Home Depot was necessary on her part.
